Marsh Front Living at Its Best on Edisto Island Wake up to sweeping marsh and tidal creek views and experience the peaceful beauty of Lowcountry living from this attractive marsh front home in sought-after Middleton Plantation on Edisto Island. Tucked away on a quiet cul-de-sac, this nature lover's retreat offers approximately 248 feet of marsh frontage, creating an extraordinary setting for watching egrets, herons, eagles, and other wildlife as the tides move through the creeks. From virtually the moment you enter, the marsh becomes part of the home's everyday experience. Built in 2005, this well-designed home offers 2,310 square feet with an open floor plan, abundant natural light, vaulted ceilings, and an effortless connection between indoor and outdoor living. A dramatic wall of oversized windows captures the ever-changing views and fills the great room with natural light while maintaining a wonderful sense of privacy. When you want to create an even more comfortable outdoor environment, the exterior shades can be adjusted with the touch of a remote. The spacious great room, dining area, and kitchen form the heart of the home and provide an inviting setting for entertaining family and friends. The living area features a gas-log fireplace framed by built-in bookshelves, creating a warm and comfortable gathering space. The attractive
